JMIR Mental Health (JMH, ISSN 2368-7959) has a unique focus on digital health and internet/mobile interventions, technologies, and electronic innovations (software and hardware) for mental health, addictions, online counseling, and behavior change. The journal publishes research on system descriptions, theoretical frameworks, review papers, viewpoint/vision papers, and rigorous evaluations that advance evidence-based care, improve accessibility, and enhance the effectiveness of digital mental health solutions. It also explores innovations in digital psychiatry, e-mental health, and clinical informatics in psychiatry and psychology, with an emphasis on improving patient outcomes and expanding access to care.
